Rick Irvine, Strikz Youth Director, Develops TournamentPay.com

Rick Irvine - Strikz Youth Director and Developer of TournamentPay.com giving year-end awards to youth bowlers.

By: Tony Franklin, Publisher FRISCO, TX - Local Youth Director, bowler, coach, and IT professional, Rick Irvine, has created and launched a game-changing new website called TournamentPay.com

The basic premise of the tool is to provide a convenient and FREE way for Tournament Directors to enter information about their tournament, the entry form, squad times, and the bowlers have an easy way to enter and pay. What's not to love about that?

Rick got the idea from constantly having the challenge of paying for tournaments or collecting money as a youth director.

As bowlers, we have all had the issue of needing to send in a money order, cashier's check, sign up via Facebook or text... it's a huge hassle with no easy method.

For Tournament Directors, there is the constant battle of getting the bowlers to pay on time, so that you know how

Tony Franklin, Publisher

I have a big and exciting milestone coming up in a few weeks, I will be turning 50-yrs-old.

In most walks of life, getting older and specifically turning 50, may not be what people would call exciting. For me it really is.

I've been looking forward to being able to bowl competitively in a 'new division' for some time now. I want to bowl against bowlers my own age again, I want to be the young one!!!

I'm not saying that trying to beat the old guys is easy, because it's definitely not. I mean who wants to bowl against Jim Stephens everyday...nobody!

But in the grand scheme of bowling, trying to compete with the Lavery-Sphars and Chapmans, and Cruz's is not a ton of fun. Those guys are great for a reason, they work very, Cashers were Anthony Simonsen, Shawn Maldonado, Raymond Lussier, Sam Cooley, Francois Lavoie, Mykel Holliman, Allister Rutledge, and AJ Chapman.

Saturday morning began promptly at 9am. The bowlers began their day on the short pattern designed by Kegel for us and named shortly after testing by Joe Findling & Stephen Keblish as "The Gates of Hell."

Most that bowled on it may agree that was an accurate name for the pattern. Those that started with urethane found that may not have been the best of choice.

The leader for the 8 games of the morning block was Shawn Maldonado at +172 and -63 was the last cash spot at the break.

Lunch was served for the bowlers and was sponsored by Platinum Ford (the #1 Car Dealership for bowlers in DFW).

The second squad would start on the little more playable pattern designed by Kegel and named as well by Keblish as "Purgatory."

Scores started quickly on the pattern with Jakob Butturff coming out of the gate with a 278, moving him up into the cash as he sat at 23rd place at the break at -85.

Sam Cooley wasn't far very hard at it, and deserve their success.

I'm very much looking forward to all of the great scratch tournaments that are available to the 50+ bowlers. There are a lot of great people bowling and tons of top-notch competition, exactly what gets me fired up.

We are so fortunate in the Southwest area to have a large population of Seniors that are competitive bowlers, with so many different opportunities to shoe up.

I never imagined that turning 50 would give me so much energy, but it truly has, and I'm looking forward to doing some serious bowling for one last hurrah.

behind firing out the gate with a 268 moving himself into the top 8 as he sat in 14th place at the break at -38.

During the squad, there would be many lead changes with Jakob taking the tourney lead after game 12 at +111, but Stu Williams would eventually catch Jakob to take the tournament lead, earning the #1 seed for the single elimination matches.

But the most exciting moment of the day came game 14 when Kenny Hamby made a run at fame.

With the 300 bonus active and a new Ford truck up for grabs, he came close to perfection.

His goal for this tournament was to win the truck to start his own business and his goal was almost realized with the front 11 (and making those two shots look easy as both were flush). Hamby came up for the 12th with the building all behind him watching and hoping for history.

The shot just didn't quite get off his hand and quickly making a hard right past the head pin for a tourney high game of 296.

Your top 8 bowlers after the qualifying were Stu Williams +250, Jakob Butturff +192, Cortes Schneck +154, Shawn Maldonado +132, Micah McCracken +122, Sam Cooley +101, Mykel Holliman +97, & Josh Imhoff +88.

Last cash went to Anthony Veney -72.

High Senior/Lady not in the cash was Nicollette Gaudette in 30th -278 earning her entry back.

The matches would start with Micah .vs Josh, Josh winning to move on and Micah finishing 7th and Sam .vs Mykel with Mykel winning to move on and Sam finishing 8th.

Next up was Cortes .vs Josh, Josh again winning to move on and Cortes finishing 5th and 173 to join fellow Arizonans, Matthew Zweig of Scottsdale and Cortez Schenck of Phoenix to take on the might and reputation of thus far unbeaten Lavoie, who has won more than all but two other bowlers on this year's Professional Bowlers Association Tour.

His unorthodox style of approach to delivery earned him the "underdog" moniker, but he soon turned that around with chat-room terms such as "Dylan the Destroyer" and later in the world-wide live-streamed broadcast, "Dylan the Dominator", as he broke first Zweig 216-161 then highly-favored Team USA's Cortez Schenck, 209-205.

Schenck, one of the highest rev-rate players in America who still employs his thumb in the ball at release, threw a flawless game on a difficult and testing lane condition, scoring nine pins or a strike on every shot but uncharacteristically flagged a 2-pin leave early on that gave Taylor breathing room to throw a turkey and the lead.

Taylor's double in the eighth and ninth frames, following an unconverted split, was vital as Schenck, needing a strike to potentially shut him out, left a "freezing cold" 9-pin. Taylor's spare and seven-count on the fill proving his worth to ascend to the championship match.

He had to beat Lavoie to even them up at one loss apiece and did so with an opening three-bagger and closing double for a clean 224 to Lavoie's searching 190 in which the French-Canadian tried all he knew to combat the lanes, moving way left, a little right, employing loft and softer releases for little to no avail.

In the title replay, with Lavoie failing to strike on the right lane early on then leaving a nasty split there in frame eight, Taylor, himself in trouble with two splits of his own, was still ahead by three pins, after Lavoie threw a clutch shot in the ninth frame on that lane for a 10-pin rap/spare.

Lavoie, who chose to finish first, struck and spared for 175, well below his earlier match-play average of 219. It was up to Taylor to win or lose on his own and he did so with eight-spares, eight to win by one pin with 176, the second time in the last three events, that a single pin has decided the outcome.

Total prize-money for the week-long tournament was more than $ 76,000, an event record. It was announced that the 2022 edition will be held August 19-21.

Jillian Martin Makes History with Win at 2021 PWBA BowlTV Classic

By: Matt Cannizzaro

ARLINGTON, Texas - Junior Team USA member Jillian Martin of Stow, Ohio, made history Tuesday night by becoming the youngest bowler to win a Professional Women's Bowling Association Tour event.

The 17-year-old phenom defeated England's Verity Crawley in the title match of the 2021 PWBA BowlTV Classic, 221-188, to claim the $10,000 top prize and a place in the bowling record book.

The BowlTV Classic was held at the International Training and Research Center as part of the four-event PWBA Summer Classic Series, and all rounds of competition were broadcast live on BowlTV.

Martin, who celebrated her birthday on July 25, bested the 35-year-old mark set by PWBA and United States Bowling Congress Hall of Famer Wendy Macpherson, when she won the 1986 U.S. Women's Open as an 18-year-old high school senior.

"I was very nervous going into that match, but I reminded myself how special it was to have an opportunity to win a tournament against the best ladies in the world," Martin said. "I wanted to make the most of it and have some fun. I kept telling myself that the whole match. I made a couple bad shots, but it was incredible to have that opportunity and be able to find success at the highest level."

The loss was Crawley's second runner-up finish of the Summer Classic Series, and sixth since joining the PWBA in 2017, but she did break through for her first PWBA Tour title at the 2021 Greater Nashville Open in June.

Champion Jillian Martin

She started Tuesday's title tilt with a pair of strikes, before back-to-back washouts in the third and fourth frames left her in a hole she could not climb out of.

In the championship match of the PWBA International Bowling Campus Classic on Saturday, she fell to Jen Higgins of Lewis Center, Ohio, 252-155.

Though Crawley won't leave Arlington with a trophy, she did make her way into the race for PWBA Player of the Year. She's now second on the 2021 PWBA points list behind Julia Bond of Aurora, Illinois, who has won two titles this year.

"It has been a phenomenal few weeks," said Crawley, a 27-year-old right-hander who was the only bowler to make the cut in all three Summer Classic Series events. "If you would've told me coming into this that it would turn out this way, I 100% would've walked away completely satisfied with those finishes. I'm very proud of myself and how I competed each event and how I stayed mentally strong."

After sparing a 10 pin in her first frame back under the BowlTV lights, Martin struck in six of her next seven frames to put the match out of reach.

Not only did Martin help herself to the brink of history Monday and Tuesday, she also set herself up for a chance at redemption.

At the 2021 PWBA Kickoff Classic Series in January, Martin found herself in a similar position, when she earned a meeting with Bryanna Coté in the title match of the PWBA ITRC Classic. Unfortunately, it wasn't Martin's time, and Coté won the game, 244-238.

"I made good shots last time against Bryanna and bowled the best game I could to give myself a chance, and while it was a hard loss, I learned from it and wanted to come back from it," Martin said. "I knew I'd be back out here competing at some point in time, but I didn't know it would be this soon. I figured that whenever that time came, I'd try to be the best I could be and take advantage of the opportunity."

It was Martin's performance

many entries you are going to have, or just have a simple method of getting the money. This tool solves all of those problems and more.

Here are some helpful additional features:

1. Ability for each team member to pay individually, so the team captain doesn't have to collect all of the money anymore

2. Email notifications to team members

3. Ability to see available squad times for tournaments you are entering

4. Ability to search to find tournaments, no longer have to go through every Facebook group to find if there is something to bowl

5. Ability to do average verification via linking with Bowl.com

The website became live on Friday, so Rick is in the very beginning stages of publicizing and getting Tournament Directors on-board, but once this catches steam, it will be the perfect one-stop-shop for tournament bowlers.

The site will accept Credit Card, Apple Pay, Google Pay and a couple of other methods. There is a small 'site fee' that is charged to the bowler paying the entry, but again, that is for the convenience of being able to enter a tournament from the comfort of your couch or phone.

There is No Charge for the Tournament Director to enter their tournament on the website.

For more information, go to Page 10 for the full-page ad in The Bowling News this week and get connected via the QR code.

As TBN returns to weekly editions, it's time for the annual Troy Walker Media series of columns, focusing on one of the cornerstones of JPA, that is how bowling is perceived by the outside media and what can be done to further blend and grow bowling's exposure.

The series is named for the legendary video clip of Troy Walker from the 2013 Luci Doubles going for a 300 game when the sweep inadvertently dropped literally in front of the ball as it was about to enter the pin deck for what could have been a 300 game. Instead, the clip became the first viral video clip, appearing in places bowling had never been seen before, like national broadcast network television news and talk shows, wacky morning radio shows, and many other places online.

Since that video had over two million views in several days, I've taken you behind the scenes of who really watches sports on television and the ratings systems used to measure audiences, and what it was like to broadcast the 2017 Luci Doubles on PBA XtraFrame.

This year I'm going to explain how professional bowling and professional bowlers use sports marketing and how well each has adapted to the early 21st century model.

Marketing is one way of bringing attention and making others aware of a brand. For instance, you have gotten used to how Pro sports leagues promote their teams...Come to so and so Park or Field and watch our home team battle the visiting team. Come out as we take on our archrival tomorrow in a key game. Want to know how so and so catches the ball so well? Since using our glove, he became a multi time Gold Glove winner.

For bowling, it's...Want to know how so and so strikes so much and makes many more television finals and wins more tournaments? He/she uses this brand of ball.

Notice something missing here? In the evolution of the internet and social media in the last two decades, with few exceptions, individual athletes have been much more active in marketing their own brand and name by promoting themselves on various websites and social media platforms.

In the middle part of last century, bowling ball manufacturers would send their ball staff professionals out to exhibitions and clinics across the country for weeks at a time, not only to show off the latest equipment, but also what were essentially the first learn to bowl classes.

Before he became a Houston area bowling proprietor, the late USBC Hall of Famer Don Ellis told me on several occasions of his trips as a member of the Brunswick Advisory Staff. He and Brunswick both shared the idea was to interact with the buying public in groups to keep the company name at the forefront of bowlers. Remember, this was the time when national media exposure was done through movies, newspapers, radio, and magazines. Television was in its infancy and not everyone had a television set yet. And for bowling, buying a ball was done much less frequent than today.

Fast forward ten years into the late 1950's and television ads were added to overall marketing campaigns showing the latest equipment, including a new-fangled piece of equipment known as pinsetters. Many smaller centers were still staffed by pinboys for the next few years as both AMF 82-30's and Brunswick A2's fully automatic machines became commonplace. Keep in mind in the post World War 2 era, there was a tremendous push for the bigger, better, and wherever the next great leap of technology would head.

This was when bowling became one of the first television sports. At this point, individual bowlers came to be more marketable to equipment companies, both of balls and pinsetters.

With individual tournaments and made for TV shows being televised, like Jackpot Bowling, Make That Spare, and Championship Bowling, audiences started to see the faces of its big stars more frequently, mainly Don Carter and Dick Weber.

At the time, Carter was on Brunswick staff, Weber with AMF. Both were giving exhibitions showing off each company's pinsetters while giving exhibitions. Carter was one of the first athletes to make a six-figure income through investments and other endorsements outside the bowling world with Viceroy's, Palmolive Rapid Shave, Wonder Bread, and later in the 1970's as the lone bowler in the famed Miller Lite beer ads.

In 1964, Ebonite signed Carter to the first big money sports endorsement deal, the famed ten-year $1 million endorsement contract, which included the introduction of its Gyro Balanced Ball. It used his signature with the engraved Gyro symbol, used on many Ebonite balls until only a few years ago. Also included was the Don Carter glove with the palm pad, (the one Mark Roth

Jef Goodger and the Bowlers of the Lost Art

I always enjoy reading Jef Goodger's editorial in Bowlers Journal International, and the July edition did not disappoint. The title of his article was Decoding the Language of Topography, and was focused on a bowler's ability to conquer lane conditions.

It suddenly dawned upon me that my geographic training in school may have provided an insight into bowling that I had never contemplated before... topography! My first introduction to topographic maps was at about age 13, at the Carnegie Library in my hometown of Sebastopol, California. An older patron most likely showed me how to use the stereoscope glasses over a pair of map images, making two dimensional images come to life in the brain as a third dimension!

For those of you that may never have experienced this phenomenon, I highly recommend visiting your local library or institution of learning (high school or college) to see if you can witness this imaging first-hand. The best way that I can describe the adventure of topographic map exploration is this: imagine that you are looking at Google Maps (either terrain or satellite imaging) and the hills, valleys, mountains and buildings miraculously "pop up" out of the map!

Without realizing it at the time, my ability to "read the lanes" while rolling all of those 300 games during my college years, before the onslaught of high scores began to proliferate the bowling scene, was possibly from my college training as a geography major at Sonoma State University. It all makes perfect sense to me now, almost 50 years after the fact, following the reading of Jef's article about decoding the lanes.

Goodger, in his customary utilization of double entendres, so reminiscent of the famous ten-pin bowling writer Chuck Pezzano, provides a few examples to explain his topic of decoding lane topography:

- 1) The topography is pretty good here. The lanes aren't perfectly flat, but they're close.
- 2) The lanes are tricky. The lanes favor that other guy's ball more than mine.

- 3) Every pair is different. This is not a fun place to bowl.
- 4) Every lane is different. This is the worst place that I've ever bowled.

Isn't it interesting on today's Pro Bowlers Tour that the lane condition is actually telegraphed to the competitors with the appearance of a blue oil substance upon the surface of the lane? Can you imagine how easy it would have been back in the day to line up, especially when moving after each game? I find it interesting that most bowlers, with the exception of some of the older competitors (Norm Duke, Chris Barnes, etc.), don't even use the oil line that is provided to direct their ball to the pocket. It's as if the overreaction of the bowling balls has negated the advantage of the "block" condition that is evident to everyone with a color television.

Carrying that a step further, it's also interesting that some of the top pros have resorted to using urethane once again, to control the overreaction caused by the reactive bowling balls. As color commentator Randy Pedersen has often mentioned, the "rev" rate of the bowling ball has now become as important as the angle of entry provided by the big hook. Top players that come to mind in regard to the switch to urethane are Jesper Svensson of Vimmerby, Sweden, with 10 PBA Titles; Anthony Simonsen of Little Elm, Texas, with 8 PBA Titles; and Jakob Butturff of Chandler, Arizona, with 7 PBA Titles.

Many times, I have mentioned that when I initially joined AMF, it was an opportunity for me to see the world and to discover many of the geographic sites that I had witnessed in books and classroom films. This was indeed true, but little did I realize until perusing Jef Goodger's article, Decoding the Language of Topography, that my good fortune had begun many years earlier, when the natural and physical features of a bowling lane popped up like a topographic map under the lens of stereoscope glasses, and allowed me to visualize the lane in 3D!!

What's ahead for bowling writer, television commentator and producer Jef Goodger? "Fortune and glory, kid. Fortune and glory."

I'm getting ahead of myself here on marketing history here, but one nice campaign we've seen in recent days is the GoBowling.com television ads encouraging people to go out and bowl as they did before the pandemic. What to do when you left part of your game at home -

Ever felt that way? I arrived at a tournament once and discovered I had forgotten my left side spare game at home. It was as if I had never shot a left side spare in my life. The lane looked all off. I knew I usually stood over here and threw over there but it was all wonky and I couldn't get the feel. And then there was the time with one and half games to go and I'm the bubble, the thumb slug falls down into the thumbhole....

Maybe today is the day it feels like you are pushing every shot outside. Actually, that was in the first two games. Now it feels like you couldn't get the ball to the outside unless you faced six lanes away. Whose ball is in your bag anyhow?

Stuff happens. You'll have to go with what you brought today. It is no different than bringing your bag into the center and opening it only to discover you've brought the wrong bag. As soon as the panic subsides, you just move around until you find a place where the equipment you brought will work.

By the way, this is not an opportunity to gripe about the lanes. You never have permission for that. It's not the lanes' fault you brought the wrong bag. I think you should practice this scenario, actually. It's one of the best ways to find how deep you can dig to find the versatile and creative bowler in you. In fact, sometimes you discover you didn't bring the wrong bag at all. What you brought was the wrong idea...

TERRELL - Donald Davis, Jr. pocketed potent 246-287-258 = 791 marks in Sunday Night Mixed action to head the honor roll for the month at Terrell Bowling Center.

HONOR ROLL

Anyway, what usually happens in that "There's no shot out here tonight" situation is that we determinedly keep throwing where we WERE effective, thinking the magic will be back in just a second. We're sure the shot WAS there which means it IS there. Maybe not. The reality is that what you are doing isn't working.

What the ball did last frame on this lane has not much to do with this frame. Don't judge. Observe. This moment says that in order to get the ball to the outside you need to face six lanes away. Okay, so do it. Facing six lanes away cannot possibly be any more embarrassing than the last few shots you've attempted....

At that tournament where I realized I had not brought my old, dependable left side spare game with me, it was time to get radical. So, radical for me at the time was to stand on the left side of the lane and throw down the boards at left side spares. It felt a little awkward but was certainly no worse than the foreign territory of the right side of the lane! It worked and I learned about alternative thinking and panic attacks and getting in ruts and all kinds of things from that experience. It's always about the learning.

Anyway, the point is that you fix what you can fix during competition and when you or your stuff can't be repaired right then, you go with the flow and try something different. You'll always learn something, even if it is to mark your bags more carefully. Learning what not to do is just as important as learning what to do. See ya' at strikeability.com!

at that event, and the PWBA Kickoff Classic Series it was a part of, that earned her a special exemption into the Summer Classic Series from USBC and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

Along with the second-place effort against Coté, Martin added third- and eighth-place finishes at the Kickoff Classic Series, plus a 299 game.

Returning to the lanes this week, knowing she had previous success at the ITRC, allowed Martin to be comfortable and confident from the start of the Summer Classic Series.

She posted the highest average (212) and turned in an event-best 20-4 record over three rounds of match play on the 41-foot oil pattern at the BowITV Classic to lead the field by more than 200 pins and earn the top seed for Tuesday's stepladder.

She had a high game of 244 and low game of 166, and it was her consistency over the two days that left her just one win away from becoming the answer to a trivia question.

"I had a good look on the pattern and felt I was able to play to my strengths," said Martin, who's latest visit to the ITRC also included a 13th-place finish at the PWBA Go Bowling Classic and a 22nd-place effort at the IBC Classic. "My shot

This campaign may not have worked several years ago, but after being confined to one's home for a sizeable chunk of the last eighteen months, it is designed to tug at the heartstrings. The best part of it all is it has been seen on at least a dozen different mainstream television stations and networks, providing exposure to the widest cross section of possible viewers.

making this tournament was absolutely incredible. The two tournaments before, I just felt a click off, but I felt so close. I put it all together for this last tournament and was able to get it done, so that was incredible."

Crawley earned the opportunity to meet Martin by defeating Coté in Tuesday's semifinal match, 208-182. Nine clean frames from Crawley after a first-frame 7-10 split, including three consecutive strikes as the game reached its midpoint, proved to be enough to hold off the two-time PWBA Tour winner, who left a pair of splits along the way.

Coté made her way to the semifinal with an eight-strike, 233-194, win over Germany's Birgit Noreiks.

Noreiks was looking for her second title at the Summer Classic Series. She won the series-opening Go Bowling Classic for her first singles win, and second victory overall, on the PWBA Tour. She also won the 2017 Professional Bowlers Association/PWBA Striking Against Breast Cancer Mixed Doubles with Jason Sterner.

In the opening match, Noreiks struck in four of her first five frames to take a lead over Jordan Richard of Maumee, Ohio, but Richard rallied with four consecutive strikes, starting in the fourth frame, to cut the deficit.

A 4-6-7-9-10 split from Noreiks in the eighth frame gave Richard the lead for the first time, along with a chance to lock up the win.

Richard struck in her ninth frame, before leaving, and converting a 3-10 split, but a six-count washout on her fill ball opened the door for Noreiks. Instead of needing a double to advance, the German right-hander got the job done with a strike and a spare for a 205-204 victory.

A total of 24 bowlers qualified for the BowlTV Classic, the final tournament of the 2021 Summer Classic Series, based on their 18-game qualifying totals from the Go Bowling Classic and International Bowling Campus Classic (nine games each).

All pinfall dropped heading into the BowlTV Classic, and total pinfall, plus bonus pins for each win or tie in match play, determined the five players for Tuesday's stepladder.

The Summer Classic Series also included the 2021 PWBA Dallas/Fort Worth Regional, won by past Junior Team USA member Taylor Bailey of Joliet, Illinois, a member of the 2021 PWBA Tour rookie class.

Danielle McEwan Wins Second Title of Season at 2021 PWBA Spokane Open

By: Aaron Smith

SPOKANE, Wash. - Danielle McEwan of Stony Point, New York, locked up her second title of the 2021 Professional Women's Bowling Association Tour season with a strike in her final frame Saturday at the PWBA Spokane Open.

The 29-year-old right-hander recorded her seventh career PWBA Tour title with a 203-192 victory over Liz Johnson of Niagara Falls, New York, at Lilac Lanes & Casino.

She claimed $10,000 for the victory, and the championship round was broadcast live on BowlTV.com.

McEwan needed a mark in the 10th frame to secure the win in the back-and-forth title match, and she delivered one of her best shots of the week.

The 10-time Team USA member started the month with a win at the Professional Bowlers Association/PWBA Striking Against Breast Cancer Mixed Doubles event in Houston with EJ Tackett of Bluffton, Indiana.

"That shot is literally everything we practice and train for every day," McEwan said. "I knew exactly what I had to do, and I just cleared my mind and let my body do what it knows how to do. Thankfully, the pins fell."

McEwan, who entered the stepladder as the top seed, started the match against Johnson with a double and recorded spares in the third and fourth frames to build a slight advantage, but she missed a 10 pin in the fifth frame to hand over the lead to the 25-time PWBA Tour titlist and United States Bowling Congress Hall of Famer.

Johnson wasn't able to capitalize on the miscue, however, allowing McEwan to showcase her resilience and recapture the lead with strikes in the seventh and eighth frames.

"I was really frustrated after missing that," McEwan said.

"I actually missed a couple of them today and handed Liz an open on a stupid mistake. After that, I really had to buckle down to make sure it didn't cost me."

Johnson stayed clean during the title match, but she was unable to pair any strikes together, recording just three of them in the final.

Finishing the match first, Johnson could have doubled to force McEwan to throw two strikes of her own. Instead, Johnson left the 3-10 split on her first delivery.

McEwan felt her best look on this week's 45-foot oil pattern was on the fresh, and she

SOUTHWEST REPORT

By: Aaron Smith

ARLINGTON, Texas – The winners in each of the four age-based divisions at the 2021 Bowling.com Youth Open Championships have been determined by the International Bowling Campus Youth Development team.

The 2021 Youth Open Championships, a non-qualifying tournament open to all United States Bowling Congress Youth members, was contested at All Star Bowl in Indianapolis and held July 7-9, 16-18 and 24-25.

Bowlers in the 18-and-under, 15-and-under, 12-and-under and 10-and-under divisions competed for scholarship prizes and national titles in four-player team, doubles, singles and all-events.

Each discipline featured a scratch and optional handicap division, with 830 bowlers and 174 teams participating in the 2021 edition.

Breaking down the numbers from All Star Bowl, the 2021 tournament was highlighted by a group of young athletes finding success in several events, with 22 players claiming multiple titles. From that group of champions, six recorded victories in three events and a pair of bowlers each won four titles.

Additionally, 13 bowlers captured a win at the Youth Open Championships for the second consecutive time, with five of those competitors now having claimed at least one victory in each of their last three visits to the event.

The 2020 tournament was canceled due to COVID-19.

The members of Here Comes Trouble, this year's U12 Handicap Team champion, took home the most hardware in 2021, combining for 14 wins in Indianapolis.

Lindsay Greim of Poway, California, and Jon Verde of Las Vegas each recorded four victories, while Bella Castillo of Odessa, Texas, and Macey Bates of Fremont, Nebraska, each won three titles.

Along with the team win with a 2,652 handicap total, Lindsay paired with Bella to win U12 Scratch Doubles (1,142) and added victories in the girls division of U12 Scratch Singles (540) and U12 Scratch All-Events (1,668).

Jon added a pair of doubles titles with Macey in 2021, winning the scratch (1,028) and handicap (1,430) titles in U10. Jon's fourth title came in U10 Scratch All-Events, leading the way in the boys division with a 1,740 nine-game total.

Other bowlers claiming three victories at the 2021 Youth Open Championships included teammates Alia Sharif of Berea, Ohio (U15 Handicap Team, U10 Girls Handicap Singles and U10 Girls Handicap All-Events), and Cole Florack

Las Vegas (U15 Scratch Team); and Donaven Kline of Jackson, New Jersey (U12 Boys Scratch Singles).

The top overall score in the team event at the 2021 Youth Open Championships also is in position to be the highest three-game series for USBC Youth members during the 2020-2021 season.

The members of The Storm Troopers averaged more than 243 as a group to win the U18 Scratch Team title with a 2,922 total.

Brandon Bonta of Wichita, Kansas, led the effort with a 781 series and was joined by Spencer Robarge of Springfield, Missouri (732), Silas Lira of Tampa, Florida (717), and Julian Salinas of Richmond, Texas (692). The team rolled games of 960, 961 and 1,001.

parlayed her success early in blocks at Lilac Lanes & Casino to get to the top spot after 24 games of qualifying with a 5,204 total, a 216.83 average.

She was happy to take advantage of her qualifying position, too, as the opening match of Saturday's stepladder resulted in low scores and 10 open frames between Kelly Kulick of Union, New Jersey, and Ukraine's Dasha Kovalova.

Kulick advanced to the semifinal, 178-115.

"I actually was very concerned after our initial practice on that pair," McEwan said. "My best look had been on the fresh, and it kind of went away later in the block, but they were playing different, and I didn't have a good look. I was happy I wasn't bowling in the first match. I was able to sit back and watch what everyone else was doing and come up with a different game plan if needed."

"By the time we got to my match, it was definitely much better. It had blended out a little more. The lanes were still a little bit different from lane to lane, so that was tricky to figure out on the fly, but I just tried to make some really good shots to get a feel for what they were doing."

Johnson was awaiting Kulick as the No. 2 seed, and she advanced to the title match with a 238-192 victory over her fellow USBC Hall of Famer.

Johnson, who was looking for her second win in 2021 after defeating Kulick in the title match at the PWBA Lincoln Open in May, put together a string of five consecutive strikes in the middle of the game to roll to the final.

Kulick and Kovalova also were looking to add onto their win totals for the 2021 season.

Kulick, a seven-time PWBA Tour champion, won the PWBA Albany Open in June, while Kovalova captured wins at the PWBA Twin Cities Open in April and PWBA Louisville Open in June, bringing her number of career titles to four.

The 66-player field in Spokane bowled 12 games Friday, before the first cut to the top 32 athletes. Advancers bowled an additional six-game block Saturday morning, with the top 12 competing in a final six-game round to determine the four bowlers for the stepladder, based on 24-game pinfall totals.

YOUTH BOWLER OF THE MONTH

KEEGAN ALEXANDER

15, of Killeen, TX is a home-schooled Sophomore. He has been on a tear this summer, starting with a 7th place finish in the Storm Youth Championship in Louisville, KY, then a 7th place finish in the 15U division of Jr. Gold, in which he was second after all of the qualifying rounds. The Jr. Gold finish also earned him a spot on Junior Team USA, something he has been working towards for a couple of years now. He also finished 2nd in the SYC in New Jersey and won the Doubles and Team events at the National Team Tournament in Delaware. He has attributed his recent success to improving his spare game and also the great coaching he has received from Del and Carolyn Ballard at Ballard Bowling Academy.

Hometown Bowling Center: USA Bowl

How did you get started bowling? My parents worked in a bowling center in Rochester, NY and I started bowling there when I was five or six. (Note: His dad is former touring pro, Scott Alexander).

High Game: 300 and 816. I have three perfect games

Favorite Bowler: Kris Prather. He is so smooth and gets under the ball so well to create that great release.

Favorite bowling accomplishment: Making Junior Team USA this year. It means a lot to represent the team and the country, and I now have a name on my back that I need to live up to.

What other hobbies do you have? None really. I played Lacrosse back in NY, but now I just mess around in my back yard with it.

What do you love most about bowling? The friends and travelling every where. The Myrtle Beach, SC area is probably my favorite. I really enjoy bowling all of the SYC's.

What are your bowling goals? I really want to bowl professionally on tour, but for college I would like to go to McKendree University. Shannon and Bryan O'Keefe are so supportive of me, I really want to go there.
